Williams 1815), a lawyer in Amherst, who was active in the founding of Amherst College and was secretary of its corporation 1828-1864, and who was one of the originators of the Liberty Party, being its first candidate for Governor of Massachusetts, and Fanny Haskins (Shepard) Boltwood; descendant of

Robert Boltwood, who came from England to Connecticut in 1648 and settled in Hadley, Mass., in 1659. Mother, Margaret Matilda (Van Hoesen) Boltwood; daughter of Jeremiah Wall and Margaret (Ostrander) VanHoesen; descendant of Jan Franse VanHoesen, who settled at Fort Orange and Beverwyck (now Albany), N. Y., in 1645 and in 1662 purchased several hundred acres of land along the Hudson River, including Claverack and the site of the present city of Hudson. Yale relatives include: Edward Boltwood, '60 (uncle); and Charles U. Shepard and George C. S. Southworth, both '63, Mase S. Southworth, '68, George S. Boltwood, '82, Lucius Boltwood, '83, Charles W. Boltwood, '90, Edward Boltwood, '92, Lucius C. Boltwood, '16, and Chester G. Boltwood, '23 (cousins)

Albany Academy. Chemical course; prize for excellence in physics Freshman year; highest rank in chemistry Senior year; Senior reading appointment in chemistry at graduation.

Studied inorganic chemistry at University of Munich 1892-94; assistant in analytical chemistry in Sheffield Scientific School 1894-96 and instructor 1896-1900; during summer of 1896 studied physical chemistry at University of Leipzig; Ph D. Yale 1897, from 1900 to 1906 conducted a private laboratory in New Haven, devoting much time to technical chemistry work, and being associated during 1903 and 1904 with Joseph Hyde Pratt, '93 S., under firm name of Pratt & Boltwood, consulting mining engineers and chemists; since 1906 had again been a member of the Yale faculty; assistant professor of physics 1906-1910; during last year of that period, while on leave of absence, was John Harling Fellow at University of Manchester, England, working with Sir Ernest Rutherford (Sc D. Yale 1917) and engaged in investigations connected with radioactivity; since 1910 had been professor of radiochemistry, with the exception of a year (1918-19), when he was acting professor of chemistry; acting director of Sloane Physics Laboratory 1913-14 and Kent Chemical Laboratory 1919-1922; a representative on the University Council 1918-19 and a counselor in the Freshman Year 1922-23, in 1917 served as an instructor in the Yale R. O. T. C., and in 1918 was in charge of the chemical unit of the S. A. T. C.; was also engaged in experiments on the detection of submarines at the submarine base at New London in 1917; his outstanding contributions to science are summarized as follows: discovery of a chemical element, ionium (1907), showing genetic relation of uranium, ionium, and radium, thus supporting the disintegration theory; showing that certain chemical elements could not be chemically separated, giving the first evidence of "isotopes" (isotopy has been a new branch of the physical sciences since this discovery), that lead is the final product of the uranium-radium series; that the ratio of lead to uranium can be used to determine the "age of the earth"; that actium is in a genetic line of descent from uranium but not in the same line as radium; was the first in this country to analyze waters for their radon content, and in 1918 was employed by U. S. Department of the Interior to make tests of Arkansas Hot Springs for the presence of radium and found that the waters were radioactive; translator of Quantitative Analysis by Electrolysis (A. Classen) (1898) and of Physical Chemistry for Beginners (C. H. VanDeventer) (1899); had published many papers on chemistry and radioactivity in American Journal of Science, American Chemical Journal, Proceedings of the Royal Society (London), and Philosophical Magazine (London); Fellow of American Academy of Arts and Sciences; member American Chemical Society, American Physical Society, American Philosophical Society, National Academy of Sciences, Connecticut Academy of Arts and Sciences, and Alpha Chi Sigma; elected an honorary member of the Book and Snake Society in 1917 and of the Aurelian Honor Society in 1918.

Unmarried

Took his own life; had suffered a nervous breakdown early in the summer. Buried in West Cemetery, Amherst. Survived by an aunt, Miss Albertine VanHoesen, of New York City. In his memory the Bertram Borden Boltwood Scholarship Fund has been established at Yale by some of his friends, the income to be used annually as a prize scholarship in the Sheffield Scientific School.

Harry Helmer Jackson, Ph.B. 1892.

Born July 5, 1869, in Middletown, N Y
Died November 14, 1927, in Chicago, Ill.

As it has been impossible to secure the desired information for publication in this volume, a biographical statement will appear in a subsequent issue of the Obituary Record.

Joseph Lesinsky, Ph.B. 1892.

Born April 15, 1869, in Las Cruces, N Mex.
Died January 27, 1928, in Albany, N. Y.

Father, Henry Lesinsky, president of Arizona Copper Company and of the H. Lesinsky Company, merchants, El Paso, Texas; pioneer gold and copper miner in California and Arizona; born in Bromberg, Germany. Mother, Mathilda (Lesinsky) Lesinsky; daughter of Dr. Ludwig Lesinsky and Augusta Lesinsky, of Berlin, Germany.

Prepared under a private tutor. Chemistry course; president of second Banjo Club.

Spent three years abroad after graduation; studied at Göttingen and Heidelberg Universities and received degree of Ph D at Berne University in 1898; instructor in chemistry at New York College of Pharmacy 1898-1901; suffered a nervous breakdown and for four years was unable to engage in any occupation; managing chemist for National Chemical Company, New York City, 1905-1911; research chemist for E. R. Squibb & Sons, New York, 1911-15; chemist and vice-president of Dissosway-Schad Company, Inc (now Dissosway Chemical Company), manufacturing chemists, Brooklyn, 1916-17; later engaged in fruit farming at Cedar Knoll Farm, Athens, N Y, until about 1924.

Married October 11, 1906, at Long Lake, N. Y., Helen, daughter of Joseph and Mary Letitia (Helms) Hanmer. One daughter, Joan

Death due to septicemia. Buried at Long Lake. Survived by wife, daughter, a brother, Albert R. Lesinsky, of New York City, and three sisters, Mrs Rosemarie Colledani, of Oberpleis, Germany, Mrs. Leonore L. Bright, of New York City, and Mrs William P Breitwieser, of Scarsdale, N. Y.

Nelson Beardsley Burr, Ph.B. 1893.

Born February 3, 1871, in Auburn, N Y
Died February 11, 1928, in New York City.

Father, Charles Porter Burr, a banker; son of Nathan and Amelia (Porter) Burr; descendant of Benjamin Burr, who came to this country from England about 1635 and settled in Hartford, Conn; family later settled in Auburn. Solomon Garabed Akkelian, B.D. 1911.

Born in Aintab, Turkey
Died in 1917, in Oorfa, Armenia

Graduated at Central Turkey College, Aintab, 1908, and entered Yale Divinity School that year; after receiving his degree in 1911, spent a year in graduate work and then returned to Aintab; accepted a call from the Evangelical Armenian Church of Oorfa and served that church until the war broke out. In 1915, the Armenians in Oorfa were ordered to leave their homes and go into exile; they refused to obey the orders and the Turkish Government declared them rebels. Mr. Akkelian was condemned by court-martial as the leader of the "rebels" and was hanged in public in 1917. In a book published later by Talaat Pasha's cabinet, in which they tried to justify their connection with the Armenian atrocities, his name is mentioned, indicating that as a man of commanding character he had attracted attention.
